Ceco strolls down the street, heading towards the bus station, when he encounters an unexpected obstacle.

The inevitable happens as Ceco fails to identify the parked car on the pavement, causing him to collide and tumble to the ground.

Someone oversees the incident, and rushes to offer her help.

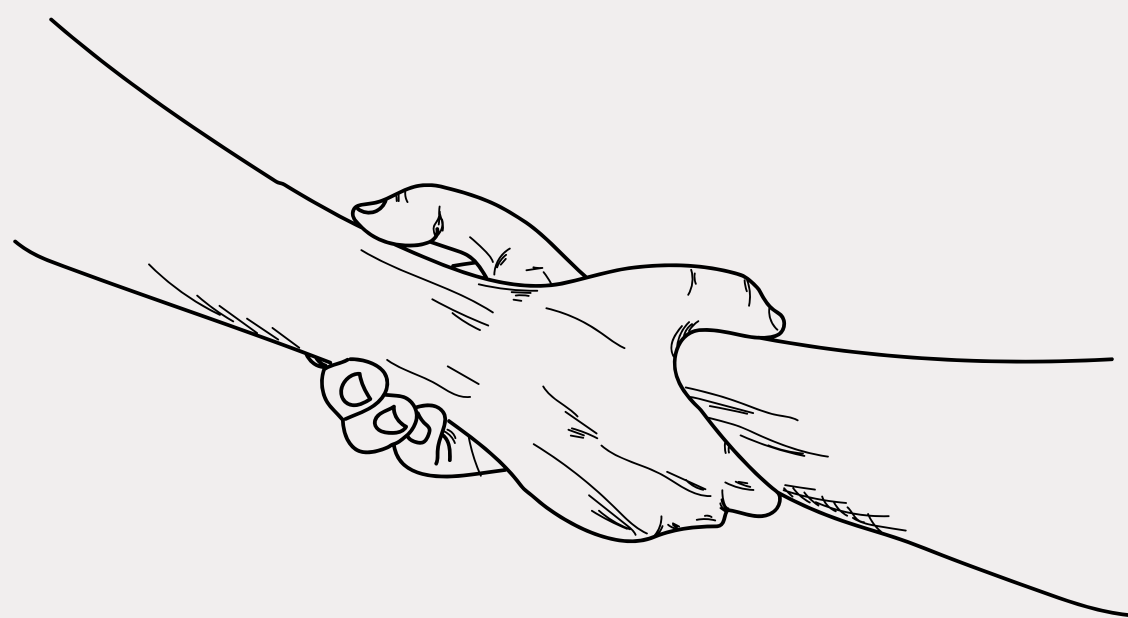

BANG

Temporarily losing consciousness, Ceco is awakened by the concerned voice of a young woman who rushes to assist him. To his surprise, he discovers she is deaf.

Despite his visual impairment, he senses her kindness and beauty as she extends a helping hand. There was something about this person, a platonic feeling of warmth and care start to fill his heart.

In this peculiar moment, Ceco experiences the profound meaning of "Love at first sight." As he embraces her, he realizes that love can transcend the barriers of words, signs, and sounds.

Together, they tap into a unique form of communication – an unspoken language of the heart. Silently, they share the rhythms of their heartbeats, allowing them to exchange information about the world; she hears through his ears, and he sees through her eyes.
